

Our Story

Evelyn Komuntale Founder/President of Outreach to Africa, is an African princess and ordained minister who has given her life to helping the vulnerable people of Africa. Although born into royalty, during her childhood, she experienced the trauma of separation from her Belgian father and African mother when Africa was transitioning to independence. The events and hardships Evelyn endured at the tender age of six, created in her a profound empathy for orphans and the needy.

She has seen the suffering, feels the compassion and is keenly aware of the urgency

Evelyn splits her time between living in the USA and checking on projects in Africa.

The Legacy

Evelyn feels deeply indebted to the compassion of individuals who were sensitive to her plight and blessed her with the gift of education. She has pledged to reciprocate this act of generosity by dedicating her life to doing the same for the children of Africa. This is the legacy and blessing she wants to pass on.

The Challenge

The AIDS epidemic, ravages of war and extreme poverty have left many vulnerable. Children orphaned by AIDS, widows with no means of support, war victims raped and displaced from their homes, all with no access to basic care.
